I suppose I had always looked around for a creative activity that I could call my hobby. When I was younger I had tried drawing and painting but although I quite enjoyed these activities, I usually hated the final results. Some friends of mine had even suggested I should learn to play a musical instrument but I knew at once how much hard work that would involve and I never gave it a go. Anyway, as the years went by I slowly began to accept the fact that I would probably never find a really exciting hobby of my own.

It all changed a few years ago when my son persuaded me to go to an exhibition of miniature trains. It was a thrilling experience the small trains pulling their cars through tunnels, across bridges and in and out miniature stations. We both got hooked immediately.

Soon afterwards we ordered a beginner's set, which included two engines, some passenger and cargo cars and several metres of railway track and we started to build our own miniature railway model. Even though it was hard work at first and we had to do things over and over again to make them look as we wanted them to, it was an extremely satisfying experience.

The new hobby has certainly influenced my life in many ways. I now travel much more often, either to visit exhibitions of model railway or to places with interesting railway architecture. My computer skills have improved as I had to start using computer programs to design or control model railway layouts and I've also made lots of new friends. It does not matter to me that it is an expensive and time-consuming hobby it is certainly worth all the time and money.

Student's Worksheet

What do you think? Giving personal opinion.

1 Work in pairs. Talk about the opinions given below. Decide whether you agree or disagree with them.

	You	Your partner
1 It's important to look fashionable.
2 Living in the country is better than living in a city.
3 There ought to be lots of extra classes after school.
4 Teenagers should get a job during the summer.
5 Reading is one of the best ways to spend free time.

2 Read the questions and answers below. Then answer each question for yourself. Try to use the phrases in bold.

1. Is it important to be able to cook? Why? Why not?

Susan: Well, I'm a good cook myself and I've been interested in cooking ever since I was a little girl. Personally, I think it's an important skill. If you live on your own or study away from home, you either have to cook for yourself or go to fast food restaurants because the really good restaurants are usually too expensive. And for me, it's also a good way to relax after a hard day.

2. Will online shopping become more popular? Why? Why not?

Robert: Definitely, it's already a very popular form of shopping although I'm not very enthusiastic about it. I buy only small, inexpensive items on the Net like books, gifts or computer games but I don't think I'd like to order something really expensive. In my view, it's still a bit risky because you may be cheated and lose your money. I also think it's more troublesome to make a complaint if goods are faulty. So on the whole, I don't think online shopping will become much more popular than it already is.*

3. Is a cycling holiday an attractive form of travelling? Why? Why not?

Dave: In my opinion, a cycling holiday is one of the best ways to have a holiday for a few reasons. Firstly, you combine travelling with keeping fit because cycling is a wonderful exercise for the whole body and keeps in good shape. Secondly, cyclists are green tourists - they don't pollute the environment. And lastly, you're free to go wherever you want, you're not limited by plane schedules and in this way you can see much more of the countryside.*

4. Do you agree that fewer young people are interested in the arts nowadays? Why? Why not?

Helen: As for me, the arts play an important role in my life, especially music and performing arts. I'm not really into painting or sculpture, but I sometimes go to our local art gallery if there's a new exhibition. But I guess it's true that these days fewer young people go to the theatre or art exhibitions. That's partly because of TV and the Internet but I also think that many young people are just too lazy to go out and see a play or an exhibition. On the other hand, however, music concerts are still very popular.*
